(S-Acetyl) L-Glutathione AIDs the body:

Antioxidant support, Immune system support & Detoxification support. (S-Acetyl) L-Glutathione is well-absorbed and more stable throughout the digestive tract than other forms currently on the market. Laboratory data shows that (S-Acetyl) L-Glutathione increased intracellular glutathione and had a positive effect on many oxidative stress biomarkers.

Who needs Glutathione; everyone !!

Most chronically ill people have a low glutathione level. This can have devastating effect on the nervous system, causing such symptoms as lack of balance, coordination issues and mental disorders. Any illness (even a bad cold), chronic disorders such as asthma and chronic fatigue, rheumatoid arthritis, chronic infections, skin disorders, or heavy exposure to pollutants can cause a glutathione deficiency. This is because your body uses more glutathione when it is supporting white blood cells and ridding the body of toxins. Healthy people also benefit from increased glutathione levels through an enhanced ability to fight off toxins, infectious disease, per-cancerous cells and the aging process itself. Glutathione is important to physically active people also. Many world-class athletes are discovering that well-maintained glutathione levels give them the edge over their competitors by increasing strength and endurance, decreasing recovery time, lessening muscle pain and fatigue.
